Special note regarding indexed annuity rate locks:

The rate lock for indexed annuities only applies to the initial Interest Term.

Other considerations:

- Generally, the "signed date" is the date a paper application is signed or an electronic application is submitted through an electronic order system. Electronic orders submitted with a true signed date field will use that field instead of the submission date. Please check with your firm regarding their specific signature date rules.
- If the Fixed contract is being funded from multiple sources, the contract will be effective based on the date the initial funds are received.
- If the Fixed Indexed contract is being funded from multiple sources (e.g. multiple 1035 exchanges), the contract will not be effective until the date all funds have been received.
- If funds are received after the rate lock period, the rate in effect when the funds are received will apply.
- There is no rate lock for additional purchase payments received for flexible premium or modified single premium products. The rates in effect when the purchase payment is received will apply.
- Business days calculations begin on the first business day following the application sign date.
- Rate locks do not apply to variable products.
- Rate locks do not apply to Index-linked products.
